

MISS MABEL SUTHERLAND FROM HER NEWEST PORTRAIT.

With the oncoming of fine weather we turn our thoughts to outdoor sports, and, ncidentally, to the manufacture of suitaole garments wherein to disport on the young friends of mine arranged to play on vacant lot in Maplewood the other day, and on asking for a permit from the real estate firm who has charge of the prop-erty were informed that theirs was the fifth permit which the firm had given that week, and this in the small suburb of Maple wood alone. Courts are being laid out al a single vacant space of ground that bousts of seventy-eight feet in length that has not been pre-empted by some quartet of would-be champions of the game. Golf, I'm really afraid, will be relegated to elderly gentlemen, clergymen and stout persons this sum-mer. Everybody else seems inclined tennis-

Forest Park Athletic Association courts long have held supremacy as the best in these parts, and will be quite as much used this year as heretofore. By this summer the Glen Echo courts ought to be worked down to something like smoothness. I am confident that they will be much played on.

This is not a particularly good climate for tennis, unfortunately. The air is hardly bracing enough, but it is the best we have,

and most of us seem determined to play, tmosphere or no atmosphere.
As to sporting clothes, the Peter Thompson suits will by lone odds be the swageer ones for outdoor wear this year. We have gone back to regular child's blouses, and 1 know one very chic little matron who expects to appear on the tennis court of the place she has taken in Webster for the coming season in a Peter Thompson outfit— the skirt of blue light-weight serge, side-pleated on each side, and the waist a simple blouse, deep sailor collar, and the sleeves with red bands and the usual insignia thereon. If you don't want a whole suit of serge, get at least a white serge use, thrown open at the throat for hotweather wear, and with anchors and signs and things embroidered on it, like your small son of 7 is wearing, or your young cousin of 12 wore at the beach last sum-

Mr. and Mrs. David Randolph Calhoun are home after a lengthy spring visit in various parts of the East. They went to Atlantic City just before Easter, but fortunately had gone down to New York with the Whitmores a day or two before the ter-rible hotel fire. Later they took a jaunt to the Hot Springs of Virginia, and then homeward. While in New York they were guests of honor at several dinners, one given by Livingston Beekman and another by the Henry Flaglers, who are old-time friends of Mr. Calhoun. Mr. and Mrs. Flag-ler, who are bride and bridegroom of about the same duration as Mr. and Mrs. Calcoun, have invited the St. Louisans to take a cruise with them in June on their hand-some yacht, and accordingly the Calhouns will return to the East in about a month's time, to remain all summer.

Opening night for the Society of Western Artists, which was last Thursday evening, brought together the Artist Gullders and an assemblage of shart people generally. The musuem galleries were full all evening and Mr. Charles Ward Rhodes's heart leaped high with joy at the prospect.

Several young matrons, who were wives of the various association dignitaries, were on hand to lend a chaperonage air to the becasion. Holmes Smith, the president, resolved, with Mr. Smith, the president, resolved. becasion. Holmes Smith, the president, re-ceived, with Mr. and Mrs. Wuerpel, Mr. and Mrs. Bringhurst and several more. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mullgardt were also in line to do the honors, but not until late, as they went first to Union Station with Mrs. Jack Hanley of Kansas City, who returned home that night. Professor Halsey C. Ives was at home with a slight illness. but Mrs. Ives appeared in the rooms for a short time. Mrs. Saunders also helped receive, without Mr. Flewellyn Saunders, who in Chicago. Mr. Champney of New York. who is an associate of Mr. Masqueray in the World's Fair Art Department, was one of the visitors, or, perhaps, we should call them the "transients," since many of them will stay for a year or two. Paul Harney, Doctor and Mrs. Cherry, Mrs. Stone. Charles Kurtz and Miss Clara Pfeifer were a few others who belped contribute to the evening's success. It was quite the best-dressed gathering in the galleries for some time, and the display of spring costumes beauty, with fine coloring, brown hair of the "ripply" kind, a tall, straight, graceful figure and the manners of a well-trained and cultured young woman. She was edu-cated abroad, and this is the first season she has spent in America for he has spent in America for some time. Mrs. William C. Little gave a delightful honoree, last Thursday afternoon. The debutante visitor, who received with he hostess, were her coming-out dress of whit Liberty crepe, simply made, the sheen of the material being sufficient ornamentation. Unlined guimpe and sleeves were of chif-fon, and at her belt was fastened a huge cluster of violets

Mrs. Little, who was in flowered white chiffon, veiled in very fine black Brussel net -a handsome gown-had asked Julia Knapp and Emma Updike to assist her daughter Louise Little, and Florence Streett at the table, which was decorated charmingly in

The debutantes, of course, were greatly in evidence among the callers, and some of the older girls as well. I saw Edna Fischel, Irwin Hayward, who is being pleasantly questioned as to her wedding plans, not far from consummation, since the date is set for June; all three Semple girls, Rita Max-on, who is just back from California, where she spent the winter with Mr. and Mrs Maxon; Marjory Oliver, the two Wright girls; Georgie and Virginia; Ella Daughaday, Bessie Green, Louise Morrison, Florence Harrison and no end of others, all in gayest spring frocks, as the afternoon was a superb one.

Mme, Odilon, the German actress who gave just one performance—sad to say— at the Germania Theater a week ago, wore by long odds the handsomest gowns seen in St. Louis this theatrical season. I am informed by a gentleman who knows that she is considered the best-dressed woman on the Continental stage and that she has all her "duds" made in Vienna, and not in Paris. Mabel Green Thompson has always declared that Vienna is the place par excellence wherein to buy original and beautiful clothes, and after seeing Odilon's I agree with Mrs. Thompson without a question

Every one of the five costumes worn in this German play was a genuine "creation," and the word is used in its fullest sense, The play, being a Florentine affair, natu-The pay, being a Forentine altair, adurally gave great scope for brilliancy in costuming and much gold embroidery, which the Viennese artist did not stint. The gown that I liked best was a most harmonious hiending of pinkish lavender, pale blue and a very odd shade of dull blue. Miss Wessel of Cincinnati, who is a niece of Mrs. Al Shapleigh, came over from the Ohio town for a week's stay and quite took the smart set by sterm. She is a transfer of the content of the same of the plantish lavender cloth. From the hem extending the plantish lavender cloth. of this gown was made of the pinkish lavender cloth. From the hem extending upward on each side to a point in the middle of the back were piaced large disks of velvet in the duil blue shade, each embroidered in heavy gold threads. Narrow bands of the blue velvet covered the tops of the flowing sleeves, which met the undersleeves of lace at the elbows. There was no more of this blue on the gown. The undergown and from petiticant were of palest blue and front petticoat were of palest

There was a wonderful negligee of turquoise blue crepe accordion-pleated and set in panels in a skirt of white satin, heavily embroidered in gold threads with application of pink chiffon flowers, an entire gown of white satin covered with gold sequins and embroidery, and a pale blue brocade whose pattern of white and blue stood out an inch, or so it appeared from the richness of the weave. This gown had pearls for its trimming. Mme, Odilon is an artist in more ways than one, and it is a thousand pittes that more of the town's fashion were not in the theater that night to see both acting and gowns. both acting and gowns.

AT THE THEATERS.

Some young ladies of the South Side gave a balcony party at the Columbia Theater last week. Those who enjoyed the afternoon were: Misses Anna Smercina, Edna Herman, Lilile Benish, Anna Cosgove, Tille Smercina, Birdle Herman, Margaret Knepper, Anna Hogan, Henriette Gerber, Justine Smercina, L. Rabenhorst.

After the matinee a supper was served at the residence of Mrs. Wm. Smercina, No. 149 South Tenth atreet. The evening was spent in music, singing and games. Those present in the evening were: Messrs, Wm. Gagnepain, B. Reece, J. Kline, R. Powell, S. Raymond, L. Smercina, F. J. Smercina, W. McDonald, Jr.; J. Timmermen, A. E. La Parre, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. #### WEDDINGS.

Mrs. Caroline F. Richter has sent out cards for the marriage of her daughter, Ida E. to Mr. Paul A. Witte, on Friday evening, April 25, at the Evangelical Lu-theran Zion's Church, at $ o'clock.

Among the interesting weddings of last week was that of Miss Marie C. Kaiser to Ben C. Ambruster at the Holy Ghost Church, Solemn high mass was celebrated at 8 a. m. Tuesday, April 15. The bride was accompanied by her maid of honor, Miss Clemmie Branconiart. She wore white corded silk, carrying lilles of the valley, while the maid of honor was tastefully gowned in white, with blue trimmings. After the ceretnony a repast was served to the couple.

Mr. William W. Hurst of Reading, Pa., and Miss Annie N. Henckler, daughter of Mr. Charles H. Henckler, were quietly married at the home of the bride, No. 5700 south Seventh street, Wednesday evening. Only immediate relatives witnessed the seremony. The bride wore a gown of pale blue foulard and lace and carried bride oses. The parlor was decorated in greens.

The marriage of Miss Marie N. Clapp and Doctor Herschel Lee Conner Wednesday, April 16, at 5 p. m., at the home of the bride's parents, No. 1345 Garrison avenue, was a pretty affair. The bride wore a going-away gown of Oriental blue etamine and carried a large bunch of Parma violets. The ceremony, witnessed by only the immediate relatives, was followed by a reception from 8 to 10.

After a short trip to New Orleans Doctor After a short trip to New Orleans Doctor and Mrs. Conner will be at home at No. 4627 Washington boulevard.

A violet luncheon was given on Friday afternoon by Mrs. Morell and her daughter, Mrs. H. Schmitz, Jr., in honor of Mrs. R. Schmitz and her daughter, Miss Adels Schmitz. The house on Hickory street was decorated in a lavender and violet tinge, ribbons streaming from the chandellers, violets being banked about the mantels and tables, and each guest wore a bouquet of the sweet-scented flowers. The Battenberg table decorations rested on a lavender silk satin. After luncheon the guests played a musical game, fragments of popular compositions being penned here and there, while the missing sections of the titles were held by different persons. Those who succeeded in connecting the most phrases were given prizes. Miss Adele Schmitz, a Vassar girl, won first prize—a sofa pillow; Miss Carrie Lipphardt, the second, a pin tray. Those present were: Mesdames—
